

You're invited.

The NKAPC and UK's Landscape Architecture Department need your input to:

- identify the value of Kenton County's hillsides;
- explore ideas for future development;
- discuss desired forms for that development;
- identify methods for increasing quality of life; and
- form consensus on these and related issues.

NKAPC and UK's Landscape Architecture Department are collaborating to conduct an in-depth study of hillsides in Kenton County. You are invited to provide input for the project. The study entitled The Hills Project will be prepared by graduating landscape architecture students. Our goal is to provide both short- and long-term regional planning and development strategies by gathering public input, performing detailed site analyses, and conducting research. This project will hopefully bring a new awareness to the impact of hillside development and suggest ideas for improving aesthetics, functionality, and environmental quality. We encourage you to attend as many as three meetings at which time you will have the opportunity to provide direct feedback to the students concerning the ideas generated.

Meeting 1: Feb. 4, 6:30PM at NKAPC
Meeting 2: Mar. 19, 6:30PM at NKAPC
Meeting 3: Apr. 21, 6:30PM, TBA

The students will be assisted by Dr. Brian Lee, professor of landscape architecture, and NKAPC's long-range planning staff. Students will discuss planning and development issues with local design professionals, government officials, employees, and citizens to acquire an understanding of the area and to discuss potential ideas for future development.

We hope you can participate and help students develop recommendations and provide potentially useful ideas to increase the quality of life in Kenton County. It is vitally important that participants understand that this is an open process and is meant to be an inclusive learning experience for students. We welcome people who are interested in contributing to the education of the students as well as providing ideas about the future of Kenton County's hillsides.

Please join us at 6:30PM on February 4 at the NKAPC, 2332 Royal Drive in Fort Mitchell. We expect the presentation and activity will last no more than 90 minutes. If you cannot join us for the first meeting, please consider joining us at one of the later meetings. In addition, if you know someone who might like to participate, please feel free to forward this invitation.
