Lightweight Concrete Be Aware of Air

American Concrete Institute
Greater Miami Valley Chapter

During Mr. Calvin McCall's 30 years of experience in the concrete construction and prestressed concrete industry, he has developed and managed quality assurance, quality control and concrete inspection programs. He worked in operations and quality control with Exposaic Industries in Charlotte, North Carolina and was Technical Services Manager for Blue Circle Cement also in Charlotte where his duties included establishing properties for Portland cement, investigating numerous types of concrete and concrete construction problems. McCall has developed high strength and early high strength concrete mixtures and gained experience in design, construction and evaluation of concrete slabs. Mr. McCall investigates field problems related to material deficiencies, admixture and cement compatibility, and mix designs that affect strength, setting, and finishing. He evaluates the cause of cracking, surface defects and distress and provides cost effective solutions. Mr. McCall served as Technical Director for Baker Concrete Construction investigating concrete problems throughout the United States and senior materials engineer for Structural Services Inc. He will discuss placing and finishing issues as they relate to lightweight concrete.
